

STORM IN SENATE OVER BRANDEIS MAY BREAK TOMORROW

Fight Expected to Be Inaugurated When Senator Overman Names Committee on Nomination.

WILL FORCE ISSUE ON FLOOR

Appointee's Friends Will Take Case From Committee Should Report Be Withheld.

The storm in the Senate over the nomination of Louis D. Brandeis for an associate justiceship in the United States Supreme Court is expected to break tomorrow. It is believed that it will be precipitated when Senator Overman, acting chairman of the Judiciary Committee, appoints the subcommittee of five to investigate the fitness of the Massachusetts lawyer.

The opinion is general that Senator Overman will select men for the subcommittee who are unfavorable to the confirmation of Brandeis, among those most prominently considered being Senators Chilton, Reed, O'Gorman, Smith of Georgia, and Walsh, Democrats, and Brandegee and Sutherland, Republicans. The subcommittee will be composed of three Democrats and two Republicans. It is considered possible that Borah or Cummins may be named as minority members.

Fight to Go to Floor.

Friends of Brandeis say they hope to get a report from the subcommittee, even though it should be an unfavorable one, in order that the fight might be carried to the floor of the Senate, where they expect to win. It is said they have no expectation of obtaining a favorable report from the Judiciary Committee, and doubt that the committee will make an early report. They fear the committee will refuse to take any action; whatever, and that a parliamentary contest may become necessary to discharge the committee.

The proponents of Brandeis declare that no appointment can be effected permanently, and that if the committee should fail to report, some Senator favorable to the nomination will move to take the matter out of the committee's hands. Should he be ruled out of order, which is not considered likely, there would remain an appeal from the chair's decision, and this would furnish a test of Brandeis' strength.

Adverse Majority Now.

In announcing that a committee will be appointed to investigate the fitness of Brandeis, Senator Overman said that if the whole committee were to vote on Brandeis now, the nomination would be rejected, but that hearings might change the minds of members.

Senator Lodge, who is opposed to Brandeis, and may lead the fight against confirmation, has begun a series of conferences with both Republican and Democratic Senators. Among the Democrats with whom he has conferred are Clarke of Arkansas, Hardwick of Georgia, Smith of North Carolina, and Overman of North Carolina, the latter of whom declares he is "astounded and disconcerted" at the President's action in naming Brandeis.

If the point of personal objection-ateness should be raised, it will be either by Lodge or Weeks, both of Massachusetts. Brandeis also being from that State.

Undermyer Lauds Brandeis.

Samuel Undermyer, New York attorney, who has been associated with Brandeis in several Government investigations, made this statement:

"I should feel proud beyond words to be able to claim the honor of having had a share, however slight, in bringing about the nomination of Mr. Brandeis. Unfortunately, I have no right to that distinction. It has put new heart into the Progressive element of our party. His is an exceptionally constructive judicial mind. If his life is spared, I predict that his name will go down in history as one of the great judges of that great age of the world's tribunals. It was a foregone conclusion that the powerful predatory financial interests would assail him, and that they would leave no stone unturned to defeat him, with all the vast machinery and subterranean channels through which they know so well how to work. Action may be delayed for a little while, but this is a battle royal between progress and reaction and we are not going to move backward."

WOMEN ON PROGRAM AT UNIVERSITY CLUB

"Evening of Music" Fills Building With Members and Their Guests.

"An Evening of Music," by the National Quartet and Ethel Garrett Johnston, concert pianist, was the attraction that last night filled the University Club with members and their women guests.

Claude N. Bennett, chairman of the entertainment committee, introduced the quartet, saying this was the first time women had ever appeared on an entertainment program of the club.

The quartet was organized last season by Mrs. Elizabeth S. Maxwell for professional work. In each of their six ensemble numbers the smoothness of tone, perfection of shading and artistic interpretation gave evidence of the most careful study and musical appreciation. All of the members of the quartet are well known and have achieved individual artistic success, but the blending of the voices in their concerted work was a revelation.

Each number was given with a breadth of tone and exquisite finish, being equally pleasing in the forte and pianissimo passages.

Mrs. Johnston gave two numbers in masterly style, the Chopin Ballade being particularly well received.

The National Quartet is composed of Elizabeth S. Maxwell, soprano; Lillian Chenoweth, contralto; William E. Braithwaite, tenor; Joseph K. Schofield, basso, and Ethel Garrett Johnston, pianist.

The following program was given: "Song of the Vikings" (Fanning), quartet; "Rolling Down to Rio" (German), Mr. Schofield; "Serenata Espanola" (Lacombe), quartet; a "Sous Bois" (Staub), b. "Of Br'er Rabbit" (McDowell), Miss Johnston; "Neath the Stars" (Thomas), Mrs. Maxwell and Mr. Braithwaite; "The Miller's Wooing" (Tranter), quartet; "On the Road to Mandalay" (Speake), Mr. Braithwaite, a "Rockin' in de Win'" (Nightingale), b. "My Lady Chlo" (Clough-Leigher), c. "My Lady Back to Old Virginia" (Bland), quartet; "Ballade in A flat" (Chopin), Miss Johnston; "Love's Passing" (Raid), Mrs. Chenoweth; "Star of Descending Night" (Emerson), quartet; "Oh, beaux reves evanous" (Saint-Saens), Mrs. Maxwell, tenor, Night, Good Night, Beloved" (Pineau), quartet.

POLICE HUNTING FOR "JACK THE HUGGER"

Three detectives today are looking for "Jack-the-hugger."

Last night a young woman, whom the police say stated she was Mrs. Frank Glascock, of 112 Spring road, reported a young man tried to embrace her. She eluded him. The officers assigned to the case are Fred Cornwell, of the Central Office, and Howlett and Bradley of the Tenth precinct.

According to the police, Mrs. Glascock went to a grocery store about 5 o'clock. She was returning to her home in Spring road, between Holmes place and Fourteenth street, when the man accosted her. She screamed and ran into a nearby house.

Captain Judge of the Tenth precinct said today his precinct has had to deal with several such complaints in the past few months.

How do they feel along the edges?

And there's really no good reason why they should crack until they have been repeatedly worn and laundered.

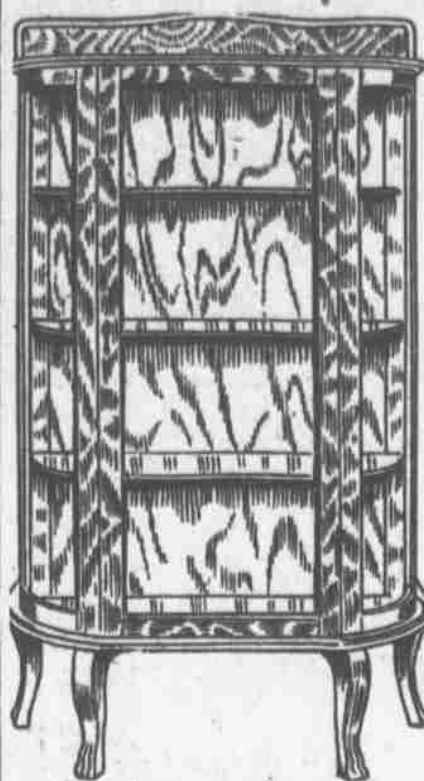

If your collars come to us the edges are always as smooth and even as when they first were worn—because they are turned on a collar moulder instead of being mashed flat by an iron.

Window Displays—Nearly every one of the 155 feet of windows on G street and the 140 feet of windows on Eleventh street are filled with furniture and other home needs. These window displays will be object lessons proving a better advertisement than pages of talk or pictures or prices in the newspapers.

Linked with less than usual prices—with $250,000 of furniture for about $150,000—is the invitation to profit by our plan of deferred payments.

A Club Plan

Linking the Lowest Cash Prices

With Later Payments

The Palais Royal Club was formed mainly at the request of patrons who wished to make extensive purchases, desirous of benefiting by the store's low cash prices, while making payments to suit their convenience.

The Club, while originally intended only for old friends and patrons in government employ, is now open to all patrons of the store whose eligibility is made apparent.

The initiation fee and all other fees have been abolished. Founded upon mutual confidence and maintained upon mutual integrity, the Palais Royal Club plan now finds no need for fees.
